

Archduke Joseph Quits As Hungarian Dictator

(By Associated Press)
Budapest, Saturday, Aug. 16.—Archduke Joseph agreed today to resign as temporary dictator of the Hungarian government because of the socialist objections to him but consented to remain in office for time being when peasant leaders and members of the reactionary party protested. They declared they would cause the food blockade against Budapest to be re-established unless he continued to act as regent.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fifteen years of age. I am in love with a boy of twenty-three and he says he loves me. I have known him six months and loved him from the first. He works at the same place I do and with any of the girls and thinks I am too young to go with a boy. He said if I still cared for him a year from now he would go with me. I try not to care for him, but cannot help it. (1) Do you think he loves me?

(2) Do you think he is right by not going with me now?

(3) All the boys like me and want to go with me, but I don't go with them as I love this boy. Am I right to wait a year and then go with him?

BLUE EYES.
You or he would want to go with you. I do believe, however, that he regards you as a very dear friend and wants to protect you against going with boys before you are old enough. You should be thankful if this is his attitude.

(2) I do think he is right by not going with me now.

(3) Do not think of going with any of the boys at least a year. Even then you will be very young. Try not to think about the boy, because the more you will love him, and if anything happens that he does not go with you at the end of the year your heart will be broken.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen years old and will graduate next year. Before I am seventeen years old, and so I am up with my studies. When the war started I was going with a young man and he enlisted and went to France and was gone over a year. He came home a few weeks ago and hasn't been to see me yet. I don't want to be too serious with him, but I love him very much. My parents approve of him and think it all right for me to go with him.

I have written to him all the time he was gone and he wanted me to be true to him. He has my picture and received three or four letters a week from him. In every one he was always saying what we would do when he got back home. Whenever he sees me he speaks real nice, but doesn't stop and talk.

I think some of the girls that want to go with him have told him things that are not true. What shall I do, go and talk to him and tell him they are not true or wait and see if he will come and ask me if they are so or not? I could go with many other boys but don't want to. I like him best, as he is certainly a perfect gentleman. If I get to talk to him would it be proper to ask him down some Sunday for dinner?

A BLONDE.
Do not invite the young man to dinner. He is showing by his actions that he does not care for your company any longer, and no matter what his reason, you should not compromise yourself by running after him. He is not the only desirable young man in town. Sometimes you will look back on this experience and realize that he was most unkind and you were foolish to be unhappy because of him.

Dear rs. Thompson: Is there any way in which a home can show that one of the family has served in the army but is now discharged? Pins are being issued for discharged soldiers. There is nothing to display in the home.

STUNNING GOWNS

nish protection for breeding mosquitoes.

The mosquito lays eggs on the surface of the water in a protected place. In frequent intervals the eggs hatch into larvae, called wiggle-tails. The wiggle-tail lives in the water but must breathe air constantly or nearly constantly. In about a week the larva is transformed into a comma-shaped creature called a pupa, which remains quietly at the surface for two more days, after which time the adult winged mosquito emerges from the pupa and sets up in business for himself. The whole time from the laying of the eggs to the full grown skelter is therefore less than 10 days in warm weather.

Removal of old cans, earthenware, open rain barrels (all vessels holding water should be kept covered with screens) and puddles of water (by drainage or filling) will discourage the propagation of mosquitoes in a neighborhood.

One of the most effective methods of stopping the breeding of mosquitoes in ponds, brooks, or other waters is by stocking the water with ordinary minnows. If bass or other fish which dine on minnows are present they must be either seined out or excluded by wire nets.

A few dozen minnows placed in a pond swarming with wiggle-tails will clean up the pests in a very few days.

Ponds where mosquitoes breed should be stocked with minnows. Gold fish are fastidious destroyers of embryo mosquitoes, but ordinary minnows will usually destroy many more in a given time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Pestering Feet.
What do you recommend for excessive perspiration of the feet? (M. C. K.)

ANSWER—Bathe the feet every alternate day with a solution of a tablespoonful of formalin (Liquor Formaldehyde, 40%) in a quart of water. Or freely powder inside the stockings and shoes with alum powder.

Flat Felts and Tapeverms.
My son, aged eighteen, recently passed a tapeworm measuring like 25 feet in length, but the specialist we consulted is not sure the head is on the parasite. The boy has always been healthy and is and has been quite fat. Can you tell us how to get the head? (M. L. G.)

ANSWER—The "specialist" must be a humbugger. An ordinary doctor can tell whether the head is present by examining the parasite.

THE FUN OF BEING DECENT.

"After all," said a little friend of mine to me the other evening, "there's an awful lot of fun in being decent when you don't want to."

USE ORANGE PEEL.

Orange Peel—Do not make the practice of throwing away the skins of oranges. The grated yellow rind makes a good flavoring for cakes, candies, puddings, sauces and icings, and is much cheaper than extracts.

Candied Orange Peel—Cut the peel of three or four oranges into narrow strips and soak it 24 hours in enough cold water to cover, adding two tablespoons of salt to each quart of water used. Pour off the salt water and rinse very thoroughly. Cover with fresh cold water and boil until tender. One and one-quarter cups of water. When it boils add the orange peel and simmer until it looks clear and the syrup has thickened. Take out a few pieces at a time and roll in granulated sugar and spread on a platter to dry. If any syrup is left it can be used a second time, or for pudding sauces.

Or orange peel may be dried in a slow oven, packed in glass jars and used cut up fine for mince pies, puddings and other desserts.

CARE OF KITCHEN RANGE.

To keep the top of range like new, melt a piece of paraffin on the top of each lid while warm, then take a flannel cloth and rub over the entire top. The same applied to the base of range and warming closet, while warm, will prevent rust.

If stove top has become red, use sand paper on it before the paraffin is put on. If this done two or three times a week the top will turn a dark blue and keep clean and smooth.

A top should never be wiped with a wet cloth. Old newspapers are better.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

MINNOWS VERSUS MOSQUITOES

The mosquito which carries yellow fever is a domestic animal, found almost exclusively close to human habitations. The famous Jersey skeeter is a wild animal seldom found near human habitations. The malaria-carrying mosquito is a semi-domestic animal, like an active lodge member, abroad and busy by night, sometimes seen around the house but preferably out with the rest of the boys.

As a rule mosquitoes do not venture far from their breeding places. Most species travel only a few rods from their breeding places. Therefore the destruction or removal of breeding places in the immediate vicinity of the home removes the pest of mosquitoes.

The essential condition for mosquito breeding is dead or stagnant water accumulated in an obstructed cave or in an old tomato can out behind the fence or in the unscreened rain barrel or in a cow track down the lane to breed all the mosquitoes one could desire in a season. Weedy places along the edges or shores of brooks or ponds are ideal breeding places. Old trees or brush hanging into the water from shore further provide breeding places for mosquitoes. (To be continued.)

100% PURE
SALAD
OIL

The Perfect oil for cooking and salads

THE most discriminating epicure cannot say whether it is Mazola or imported olive oil in mayonnaise or French dressing served him. Italians who know real olive oil are enthusiastic about Mazola.

Your grocer sells Mazola at about one-half the price of the best olive oil.

Make This Delicious Mayonnaise Dressing Today

2 Eggs, Yolks only 1 pint of Mazola 1 teaspoon of Mustard
1 dash of Pepper 1 teaspoon of Salt 4 tablespoons of Vinegar

HAVE all ingredients and mixing utensils cold. Mix dry ingredients. Add egg yolks and when well mixed add $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon of vinegar. Add Mazola drop by drop until the mixture begins to thicken. Beat slowly. As the mixture thickens, add the remainder of the vinegar a little at a time. Now beat in the remainder of the Mazola gradually until all is used. The mayonnaise should be thick enough to hold its shape. Put in a glass jar and cover close. Place in the ice box to be used when needed. It will keep for weeks. Do not stir it when you open it; take out as much as you need with a tablespoon, and close the jar.

FREE Cooking made simple and economical when you consult the new 68-page Corn Products Cook Book. Attractive illustrations. A book you will keep. Free—write us today for it.

"Now, mother—"

She released him and stepped back. "Just a moment more, dearest. I want you to read this first. We can get at things better." Only One Thing Now Lacking—Money

"I have doctored nine years for stomach and liver trouble and spent thousands of dollars, but instead of becoming cured of these ailments, my bloating and pains and attacks became worse. I was persuaded a year ago to take Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and have never suffered since taking the first dose. I wish I had the money back I spent for other medicine. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist.

HISTORY OF NUMBER 40

40 years ago an old doctor was putting up a medicine for diseases of the blood, that cured the worst cases of blood troubles, and time proved that blood troubles were permanent. After many years I secured the prescription (being a druggist), and took each in U. S. Dispensary and other authoritative books on medicine and found the medical properties set down as a goodly separate and referred to by the glauconic system, in blood troubles, anemia, constipation, stomach troubles and liver troubles, chronic rheumatism, catarrh, in sores, ulcers, pimples, skin eruptions, mercurial and lead poisoning. Under its use bodily eruptions and scrofulous swellings that have withstood all other treatment disappear as if by magic. To commemorate my fortieth year as a druggist I named this medicine "Number 40 For the Blood." J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind. Sold by People's Drug Co.

PHOSPHATE STRENGTHENS WEAK NERVES

Nothing like Phos. Bitter-Phosphate to Strengthen Weak Nerves and Increase Strength and Vigor.

According to a noted French Scientist, the most effective remedy for nervousness, insomnia and ailments due to depleted nerve force, is a form of phosphate. As there are many kinds of phosphates, care should be exercised to procure the genuine Phos. Bitter-Phosphate as sold by the Smith Drug Co. in Janesville and all good druggists.

Somewhat, I've never been able to get his friendship; he's always had a latent distrust of me—or something like distrust—and perhaps that's made me sometimes a little awkward and difficult with him. I think it may be felt from the first that I cared a great deal about you, and he naturally resented it. I think perhaps he felt this even during all the time when I was so careful—at least I thought I was—not to show, even to you, how immensely I did care. It's perfectly comprehensible to me, also, that at his age one gets excited about gossip. Dear Isabel, what I'm trying to get at, in my confused way, is that you and I don't care about this nonsensical gossip, our selves, at all. Yesterday I thought the time had come when I could ask you to marry me, and you were demure enough to me to tell me 'sometime I might come to that.' Well, you and I left to ourselves, and knowing what we have been and what we are, we'd pay as much attention to 'talk' as we would to any other kind of old cats' mawing! We'd not be very apt to let such things keep us from the plenty of life we have left to us for making up to ourselves from old unhappiness and mistakes. But now we're faced with—not the slander and not our own fear of it, because we haven't any, but someone else's fear of it—your son's. And, oh, dearest woman in the world, I know what your son is to you, and it frightens me! Let me explain a little: I don't think he'll change—at twenty-one or twenty-two so many things appear solid and permanent and terrible which forty sees are nothing but disappearing mists. Forty can't tell twenty about this; that's the pity of it! Twenty can find out only by getting to be forty. And so we come to this, dear: Will you live your own life your way, or George's way? I'm going a little further, because it would be fatal not to be wholly frank now. George will act toward you only as your long worship of him, your sacrifices—all the unseen little ones every day since he was born—will make him act. Dear, it breaks my heart for you, but what you have to oppose now is the history of your own selfish and perfect motherhood. I remember saying once that what you worshiped in your son was the angel you saw in him—and I still believe that is true of every mother. But in a mother's worship she may not see that the will in her son should not always be offered in excess along with the angel. I grow sick with fear for you—for both you and me—when I think how the will against us, two has grown strong through the love you have given the angel—and how long your own sweet will has served that other. Are you strong enough, Isabel? Can you make the fight? I promise you that if you will take heart for it, you will find so quickly that it has all amounted to nothing. You shall have happiness, and, in a little while, only happiness. You need only to write me a line—I can't come to your house—and tell me where you will meet me. We will come back in a month, and the angel in your son will bring him to you; I promise it. What is good in him will grow so fine, once you have beaten the turbulent will—but it must be beaten!

"Your brother, that good friend, is waiting with such patience; I should not keep him longer—and I am saying too much for wisdom, I fear. But, oh, my dear, won't you be strong—such a little short strength it would need! Don't strike my life down twice, dear—this time I've not deserved it."

"EUGENE."

Concluding this missive, George tossed it abruptly from him so one sheet fell upon his bed and the others upon the floor; and at the faint noise of their falling Isabel came, and, kneeling, began to gather them up.

"Did you read it, dear?"

George's face was pale no longer, but plook with fury. "Yes, I did."

"All of it?" she asked gently, as she rose.

"Certainly!"

She did not look at him, but kept her eyes downcast upon the letter in her hands, tremulously rearranging the sheets in order as she spoke—and though she smiled, her smile was as tremulous as her hands. Nervousness and an irresistible timidity possessed her. "I—I wanted to say, George, she faltered, 'I felt that if—if some day it should happen—I mean, if you came to feel differently about it, and Eugene and I—that is if we found that it seemed the most sensible thing to do—I was afraid you might think it would be a little queer about it—Lucy. I mean if—if she were your step-sister. Of course, she'd not be even legally related to you, and if you—if you cared for her—"

Thus far she got stammering with what she wanted to say, while George watched her with a gaze that grew harder and hotter; but here he cut her off. "I have already given up all idea of 'Lucy,' he said. 'Naturally, I couldn't have treated her father as I deliberately did treat him—I could hardly have done that and expected his daughter over to speak to me again.' Isabel gave a quick cry of compassion, but he allowed her no opportunity to speak. "You needn't think I'm making any particular sacrifice," he said sharply, "though I would, quickly enough, if I thought it necessary in a matter of honor like this. I was interested in her, and I could even say I did care for her; but she proved pretty satisfactorily that she cared little enough about me! The truth is, we're not congenial and we'd found that much out, at least, before she left. We should never all the time, and critical of me—not very pleasant, that!"

don't think she has the very deepest nature in the world, and—"

But Isabel put her hand timidly on his arm. "George, dear, this is only a quarrel; all young people have them before they get adjusted, and you mustn't let—"

"If you please!" he said emphatically, moving back from her. "This isn't that kind. It's all over, and I don't care to speak of it again. It's settled. Don't you understand?"

"But, dear—"

"No. I want to talk to you about this letter of her father's."

"Yes, dear, that's why—"

"It's simply the most offensive piece of writing that I've ever held in my hands!"

She stepped back from him, startled. "But, dear, I thought—"

"I can't understand your even showing me such a thing!" he cried. "How did you happen to bring it to me?"

"Your uncle thought I'd better. He thought it was the simplest thing to do, and he said that he'd suggested it to Eugene, and Eugene had agreed. They thought—"

"Yes!" George said bitterly. "I should like to hear what they thought!"

"They thought it would be the most straightforward thing."

George drew a long breath. "Well, what do you think, mother?"

"I thought it would be the simplest and most straightforward thing; I thought they were right."

"Very well! We'll agree it was simple and straightforward. Now, what do you think of that letter itself?"

She hesitated, looking away. "I—of course I don't agree with him in the way he speaks of you, dear—except about the angel! I don't agree with some of the things he implies. You've always been unselfish—nobody knows that better than your mother."

"And yet," George broke in, "you see what he implies about me. Don't you think, really, that this was a pretty insulting letter for that man to be asking you to hand your son?"

"Oh, no!" she cried. "You see how fair he means to be, and he didn't ask for me to give it to you. It was brother George who—"

Dinner Stories

There were two Browns in the village, both fishermen. One lost his wife and the other his boat at about the same time.

The vicar's wife called, as she supposed, on the Brown whose boat had gone down.

"I am sorry to hear of your great loss," she said.

"Oh, it ain't much matter," was the philosophical reply; "she wasn't up to much."

"Indeed," said the surprised lady. "Yes," continued Brown, "she was a rickety old thing. I offered her to my son, but he wouldn't have her. I've had my eye on another for some time."

And then the outraged lady fled.

A Hamden woman recently received a notice from the medical inspector of a certain school that "after careful examination it develops that your small son's tonsils are infected and must be removed at once."

To which she made the reply:

"Dear Doctor—I have received your note in regard to the removal of my young son's tonsils, which action I authorize you to take immediately. I assure you that I am ready and eager to follow your advice, and would do so instantly but for the fact that you have neglected to state where you wish them removed."

The tonsils you speak of are now, I believe, in a bottle in Dr. Blank's office, having been held in trust by him for me since the spring of 1915. Do you wish your office, or elsewhere? Yours very truly, Mrs. J. B."

My uncle left me only $5,000. Wonder if I could break his will?"

"Sure thing! He must have been crazy to leave you anything."

CENTER

Center, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Kate Ward, Chicago, is visiting her brother, James Roehy, for a few days.

Fifteen Will Start on 300-Mile Grind at Elgin Next Saturday

By George McManus.

MANY FROM HERE WILL SEE DEMONS

When participants in the seventh annual Elgin road race, which will start at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at Elgin at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, many Janesville fans will be on hand to see them. A large number of local track enthusiasts who have not witnessed any motor races since the last one was held at Elgin, four years ago, state that they are planning to attend.

A delegation of 500 convalescent soldiers from Fort Sheridan hospital will attend as guests of Chicago and Elgin race associations. The dough boys are expected to cheer for Sgt. Paul Harvey, who won an A. E. F. road race last fall. He will drive a Peugeot which Bob Burnham drove. At least 15 of the best drivers in the country will begin competition for the Cobe trophy and $3,000 in prizes when the starting gun is fired Saturday. Prospects of three or four more whose entries are in the mail will give Elgin as good a field for the major race as ever before in the history of the event.

Those whose entries are in the hands of officials are: Roscoe Sures, Roamer special; Waldo Stein, Oldfield special; Al. Cotey, Cogen special; Tom Alley, Bender special; Tom Allen, Duesenberg; Ralph Whitford, Duesenberg; Cliff Durant, Chevrolet special; Percy Ford, Haynes special; Ira Vall, Philbrin special; Paul Harvey, Burman special; Thomas, Mercer; H. Kline, Peugeot; Dave Lewis, Mercer; and R. J. Whalen, Hudson special.

A little dope on former winners of races over the Elgin course follows:

1910—Ralph De Palma, Lozier, 66.64 miles per hour in the Elgin National trophy race.

Al Livingston, National, 60.6 miles per hour in the Illinois trophy race.

Dave Buck, Marmon, 55.2 miles per hour in the Kane county trophy race.

Eddie Kearns, Benz, 53.6 miles per hour in the Fox river trophy race.

1911—Len Zengel, National, 66.05 miles per hour in the Elgin National trophy race.

Donald Herr, National, 66.64 miles per hour in the Illinois trophy race.

Hughie Hughes, Mercer, 62.4 miles per hour in the Kane county trophy race.

Mortimer Roberts, Abbott-Detroit, 53.5 miles per hour in the Aurora trophy race.

1912—Ralph De Palma, Mercedes, 70 miles per hour in the Elgin National trophy race.

Ralph De Palma, Mercedes, 67.3 miles per hour in the free for all race.

Charles Merz, Stutz, 58.7 miles per hour in the Illinois trophy race.

Hughie Hughes, Mercer, 62.4 miles per hour in the Aurora trophy race.

Harry Endicott, Mason, 60.5 miles per hour in the Jencks trophy race.

1913—Gil Anderson, Stutz, 71.5 miles per hour in the Elgin National trophy race.

Ralph De Palma, Mercedes, 66.3 miles per hour in the Cobe trophy race.

1914—Ralph De Palma, Mercedes, 73.5 miles per hour in the Elgin National trophy race.

Ralph De Palma, Mercedes, 73.8 miles per hour in the Cobe trophy race.

1915—Gil Anderson, Stutz, 77.25 miles per hour in the Elgin National trophy race.

Earl Cooper, Stutz, 74.97 miles per hour, in the Cobe trophy race.

London.—"Has your daughter ever had influenza?" asked Wynn Westcott at a Hackney inquest.
"No, sir, but she had the 'u,' replied the parent.

BRINGING UP FATHER

EDGERTON BLANKED BY FOOTVILLE TRIBE

Edgerton, Aug. 19.—Footville handed the Highway Trailers their second shut-out defeat of the season in a nine inning fray at the Driving park Sunday afternoon, 2 to 0. A number of local fans differ with Umpire Lange's ruling in the first inning, which allowed the visitors one run on the following play: Silverthorn was on third and Stuvengen on first with one down. Bond fled out to Williams. Stuvengen left first before the ball was caught. Silverthorn held third until the ball was caught and scored before the ball was relayed back to first for the third out.

Although Lentz of the visitors out-pitched Whitford and deserved to win, the breaks in the game were largely in favor of the visitors. Footville earned one run in the fourth when Stuvengen led off with a clout which the ground rules limited to two bases and scored on Vaughn's single to short left field. Lentz, with the assistance of his team mates, kept the locals from threatening at any stage. Not one of the locals reached the key-stone sack.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Timms were Sunday visitors in Edgerton.

Mrs. Fred Edwards and children of Beloit were over Sunday guests of

"Connie," Veteran Chef, Dined Many in His Day

"Connie," the chef royal of Janesville, abdicated his palatable power which he has wielded for more than 40 years in this city, last week, when he sold his restaurant at 7 South Main street, to C. C. Copeland and C. S. Scofield, Hammond, Ind.

Mr. McDonald has the distinction of being Janesville's oldest cufe man. He undoubtedly holds also the highest place in the hearts of the people of Janesville as a royal good fellow. For early he learned that the way to win a man's heart is first cooking, spiced with that most savory of all seasonings—hospitality.

"Connie" came to this city in December, 1878, from Milwaukee, where he acted as assistant steward (his career as victory of the kitchen began when he was 14 years old), at the Plunkington hotel. Mr. McDonald assumed charge of the kitchen of the Myers, remaining in that position for 8 years.

Dines Presidents

During that time he dined presidents, statesmen, actors, lecturers, prizefighters, and even gentlemen crooks. He banquets Pres. U. S. Grant, Henry Ward Beecher, James G. Logan, Tom Keene, Herbert Kelsay, John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, Tom Hess, and many other notables who came to this city.

Of Bob Ingersoll, the infidel lecturer, Mr. McDonald said:

"He was the finest, most kindly man whom I ever waited upon. His consideration for those about him and his upright living drew many followers."

"Whatever Tom Hess did as a means of making money, he was always on the square with me. He asked no favors and paid his price like others as he went along."

After serving eight years at the Myers, Mr. McDonald went at that time to the only other hotel in Janesville—the Park. He acted as chef there for four years.

Starts First Cafe

In September, 1891 he started the first cafe in Janesville at the corner of Bluff and Milwaukee streets.

It was a primitive affair with only three tables and six stools. People up to that time had not accustomed themselves to eating after 8 o'clock at night. Mr. McDonald kept his restaurant open all night. Gradually it became the custom for people to eat relatives.

Dave Andrew and family were Janesville visitors Sunday.

Frank Kleinsmith is having a brick shop erected on his farm.

Mr. Meyer is rebuilding the buildings that were blown down by the storm on the far where Paul Granssee lives.

Bessie and Florence Moore, Harvard, are spending this week with the William Klusmeyer family. Their sister, Miss Brosia Moore, accompanied them here but returned to Harvard, Saturday afternoon.

Evelyn Fraser spent Sunday with her friend, Beatrice Setzer.

Elliott Fraser and family spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fraser.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rowley, Jr., and family spent Sunday afternoon at James Rowley's.

William Casey and daughters, Josephine and Irene, were callers at James Rowley's, Sunday afternoon.

Warner, Pittsburg Most Original Of Football Coaches

Football fans are anxiously waiting to see what innovation Coach Glen Warner, of the University of Pittsburg, will develop with the Panther machine for the 1919 season. Every year Warner comes out with a new trick, or rather a new angle of an old trick, and in every contest he seems to use it to just the right advantage and at the psychological moment to insure victory.

A couple of years ago, Warner's Pitt machine came to the front through expert use of the short pass over the line. It was nothing new, but as Pitt handled it, few of the students recognized it until they had had an opportunity to analyze it.

Some smart gridiron mentors were puzzled to the extent they were almost willing to go on record that the new "dodge" was a violation of the rules.

Then another year Warner had his center play a roving game, starting from a peculiar angle. The play had startling effect. Another year his fake passes simply swept Pitt over all opposition. Opponents knew the tricks, but Warner's crew used them with such astounding cleverness and at such unexpected moments they were always decisive.

The Pitt grid director is going to be more in need of tricks this year than ever before since he assumed command of the Smoky City institution, for several of his most dependable performers have been lost through graduation, and their places must be filled by youngsters with little else than ambition to recommend them.

Warner's system of coaching, since he first won fame at Carlisle, has always included a trick or two, but he has never made the mistake of loading his charges up with a trick code to the neglect or sacrifice of the hard-earned rudiments of signal making, which must of necessity be mastered by all eleven before they can even hope for success. Warner's plea and his teaching has always inclined toward a powerful defense rather than a tricky offense, and perhaps this accounts in no small measure for the success of his football eleven over opponents who have a decided advantage.

age in weight and driving power. Warner and Pitt have contended for some near-scathing criticism for their methods in some departments of the game, but the pure (?) experts are usually cause wherever Warner may be there, a certain also to be some high class football.

Shopiere, Aug. 18.—Mr. Wheaton and family of Hebron, Ill., spent over Sunday with W. W. Swingle and other relatives.
